PHILADELPHIA PARKS & RECREATION

FAIRMOUNT PARK CONSERVANCY

Who we are

TreePhilly is a program of Philadelphia Parks & Recreation in partnership with Fairmount Park Conservancy. We empower Philadelphians to enrich life in their neighborhoods through the planting, care of, and connection with trees. We work to reverse the city's unequal and declining tree canopy by providing resources and education and nurturing relationships between neighbors, institutions and the land we live on.

How to get a tree

Get a free tree to plant in your yard!

Get a "street tree" planted in the sidewalk in front of your house!

What we do

Work in partnership with Philly community members to build healthier, greener neighborhoods across the city!

Provide grants for community partners to do greening projects in their neighborhood!

Plant and care for trees on commercial corridors in partnership with community organizations.

Community Yard Tree Giveaways with free trees for community members to plant in their yards.

Work with residents in the PHA Public Housing Program to plan and participate in tree planting and other greening projects in their neighborhoods
